Loutraki

It is considered the most ancient bathing resort of Greece. It was known during antiquity under the name of "Thermai", (Thermia Artemida was the protector God of the therapeutic natural mineral water) considered to be a therapeutic and tourist town. It was subsequently distinguished as the metropolitan center of tourist Hellas and of course, as a principal therapeutic spot. The later history of Loutraki, which was named after its thermal baths provided at its sources, commenced in 1847, when the official announcement about patients (by name) therapy by bathing in and drinking its water was made in Italy and the organized development of the initial settlement arranged round the sources began. Loutraki was characterized as a spa, in 1925. In 1936, the title as the first centre of stone in the bladder at the East Mediterranean era, was awarded in Loutraki city.

TOUR TO ARGOLIS

Mycenae, the legendary home of the Atreides, is situated upon a small hill-top on the lower slopes of Euboea Mountain, between two of its peaks, on the road leading from the Argolic Gulf to the north (Corinth, Athens, etc.).

The site was inhabited since Neolithic times but reached its peak during the Late Bronze Age, giving its name to a civilization which spread throughout the Greek world. During that period, the acropolis was surrounded by massive "cyclopean" walls which were built in three stages except on its SE flank where a steep ravine provided natural defence.

A palace was built on the summit of the hill while towards the Argolic plain lay the wall - painted "Cult Centre", the main gate or "Lion Gate" and "Grave Circle A" which contained the treasures now displayed at the National Archaeological Museum of Athens. On the NE side, a tunnel leading to a subterranean fountain was built in "cyclopean" masonry in around 1225 B.C.

More tombs, "Grave Circle B", and large tholoi as well as houses were discovered outside the walls. Mycenae was occupied without interruption until 468 B.C. when it was conquered by the city of Argos and its population banished.

We will afterwards drive towards Epidauros and visit the Ancient theatre, world famous for its outstanding acoustics.

Our last visit will be at the former capital of Greece, Nafplion. A coastal neoclassical town full of history.

DAY 3

- In the morning, coach transfer to isthmia port (15 min. drive) and embarkation onboard the vessel for the canal crossing. Crossing of the Corinth canal is unique experience.
- In the afternoon, drive back to Hotel for lunch.
- In the evening, dinner at a local fish tavern within walking distance from the Hotel.

CORINTH CANAL CROSSING

The Corinth Canal is a canal that connects the Gulf of Corinth with the Saronic Gulf in the Aegean Sea. It cuts through the narrow Isthmus of Corinth and separates the Peloponnesian peninsula from the mainland, thus effectively making the former an island. The builders dug the canal through the Isthmus at sea level; no locks are employed. It is 6.4 kilometres (4.0 mi) in length and only 21.3 metres (70 ft) wide at its base, making it unpassable for most modern ships. It now has little economic importance.

The canal was mooted in classical times and an abortive effort was made to build it in the 1st century AD. Construction finally got underway in 1881 but was hampered by geological and financial problems that bankrupted the original builders. It was completed in 1893, but due to the canal's narrowness, navigational problems and periodic closures to repair landslips from its steep walls, it failed to attract the level of traffic anticipated by its operators. It is now used mainly for tourist traffic.

PANORAMIC TOUR OF ATHENS WITH VISIT OF THE ACROPOLIS & THE NEW ACROPOLIS MUSEUM!

Athens is always in fashion! See Athens through the ages!!! In the beginning of your most enlightening tour you will have a short pause for photos at the Panathinaikon Stadium, where the first modern Olympic Games were held (1896) and then pass by the President's Palace guarded by the Evzones. Continue to the city's centre, Syntagma square and see the House of the Parliament and the monument of the Unknown Soldier in the most illustrious square of Athens.

The University avenue that follows is full of Neoclassical palaces and buildings; the fine house of Heinrich Schliemann, the impressive National Academy, the conservative State University of Athens and the very rich and symmetrical National Library. The Omonia Square is the city's other great sq., literally its pulse, with a combination of modern and neoclassical architecture. The closer you come to the Acropolis, the more the ancient monuments become: the fine temple of Zeus with its Corinthian pillars and the Arch of the Emperor Hadrian.

Mastering all of the above, we will visit the imposing Acropolis. The marble monuments and temples built in the classical times remind us that the Acropolis is more than the living history of Greece: it is the western world's prototype of aesthetic. You will realize that this scenery is an experience not to be missed...

A new museum has been constructed to exhibit the unique finds and architectural sculptures of the Acropolis of Athens. Within walking distance from the historic monuments, the Museum is situated at the beginning of the 4 kilometer pedestrian walk of archaeological Athens and just above the Acropolis Station of the Athens Metro.

For the first time in modern history all the significant finds from the Acropolis will be consolidated in the new Museum. From prehistory through to the highpoint of the Classical Period and the Parthenon, to artifacts created during the Roman Period and late Antiquity - the Museum will tell the complete story of human life on the Athenian Acropolis. The extensive remains of the ancient city revealed on the Museum site by pre-construction archaeological excavations will also grace the Museum exhibition program.
